

Do You Need College To Succeed?

Do you really need college? A question asked by many teens and adults around the world. Most parents tell their kids that they need to go to college to make something for themselves or to get a job to support a family. Most of the major names you have heard of never finished college, or even attended this goes to prove that the success and the wealth that most people dream of can be achieved by just knowledge and skill that one possesses. Take Bill Gates for example. He is making almost 11 million a day and this was not achieved by an expensive or major time consuming degree from a college. The billion-dollar empire he has created for himself was made just from his knowledge and skill, not from the thousands of dollars for a degree. I appreciate the time you have taken to read this and I ask you to think about if college is really needed to become the successful or influential person most dream of.

Sincerely,

Zachary Maxwell
